“ Sheri, I remember your mom brought you to my mom to be babysat with when you were a tiny baby. your mom forgot to tell us your name before she left. You must have had a cold because you had a buger in your nose so my mom called you Buger Boo and it stuck. It's the only name we ever called you. Your mom brought you every morning and then she would head off to work. She was a good mother to you. Over the years we took many pictures of you, I don't know if you remember us but I remember you and your mom. So sorry she passed away, I'm sure she will be missed by your family and friends.

“ It isn't exactly a memory I wish to share, but just a distant cousin saying Good-bye. I grew up in Lexington and I knew there were also Stubbs in Kearney but I did not make the family connection until I got into genealogy as an adult. Loy's brother, Jack Stubbs, did stop by and see my parents (Marion & Opal Stubbs) once to see if they were related but my father did not know at that time that his great-grandfather, Jason Stubbs, was a brother to Loy and Jack's ancestor, James Stubbs.

Farewell cousin Loy.
